TIERNAN IRISH DANCERS

The Tiernan Irish Dancers are a dynamic traditional Irish step-dancing school and performance group, founded in Boise, Idaho in 2004. We are proud to host the Boise Feis by the River.

A Feis (pronounced like "fresh" without the "r") is a competition of Irish step dancing and its related arts including home crafts, music and cultural foods.

HISTORY

Since the 11th century, step dancing has been a central element of Irish culture. Today, it is beloved around the world as a timeless art form and for its breathtaking precision. Thousands of children attend step-dancing competitions, continuing the tradition.

Tiernan's sister school is the World Champion Trinity Academy of Chicago. Through its unique instruction philosophy of combining the balance of individual and team goals with performance and community service, Trinity has been able to create a spirit and style which reflects self respect, confidence, and discipline both on and off the dance floor.

Trinity has won an unprecedented 26 World titles for the United States and is considered to be one of the most prestigious and widely recognized Irish dance organizations in the world. Tiernan is building a foundation on these same Trinity principles and is quickly being recognized for its dynamic performances and outstanding community involvement.

In just a few short years, with numerous dancers qualifying for National and World championship status, Tiernan has raised the standard in Irish dancing in the western United States.
